ENGL 3543/5543, U.S. Latino/a Literature and Film

Teacher: Y. Padilla

Textbooks Required:
Viramontes, Helena María, Under the Feet of Jesus. ISBN 978-0452273870

Description: A literary tradition of Hispanic Literatures has existed in the United States for centuries. Since the latter half of the 20th century, this field has experienced a significant “boom” largely due to newer waves of immigration from Latin America as well as the emergence of social and political movements in the United States and abroad. In this course we will examine this recent facet of this literary tradition, paying close attention to how U.S. Latino/a texts engage with questions of cultural and linguistic hybridity, gender and sexuality, identity, (im)migration, and the growth of transnational communities. Specifically, we will look at the ways that Latino/a writers/critics/artists from various backgrounds (Nuyorican, Cuban American, Dominican American, Chicano/a, US Central American) explore these multifaceted topics in their poetry, novels, short stories, testimonial narratives, and critical articles. It is not only a question, then, of looking at what it means to be Latino/a in a U.S. context but also a global and transnational one. Although a large portion of the course will be dedicated to literature, we will also explore films and artwork about and by U.S. Latinos/as.

Essays, exams, and other major requirements for undergraduates: attendance and active participation in class discussions, 4-5 short written assignments (1 paragraph “reaction” pieces), critical essay (7-8 pages), and final exam.

Essays, exams, and other major requirements for graduates: attendance and active participation in class discussions, 4-5 short written assignments (1 paragraph “reaction” pieces), critical essay (7-8 pages), and critical book review.
