The course has "TBA" list for days, times, room, and the location is student home. The section number will also start with a 9 (901, 902, etc.). This course is taught 100% online through Blackboard.

Question: The course is 100% online, can I take it?

Answer: Yes and No. Some online courses are reserved for on-campus majors and some for online-only majors. You cannot register for sections reserved for online-only majors. Check the section number for a quick reference. Odd section numbers (901, 903, etc.) are for on-campus majors. Even section numbers (902, 904, etc.) are for online-only majors. There are no overrides for online-only major sections. You can also find this information in the class notes.

Enrollment Information
Enrollment Requirements	This section is for online-degree students. A different section is available for on-campus degree students. If the section for on-campus students is closed, check back later. It will reopen by the Saturday before class begins if seats become available.

Enrollment Information
Enrollment Requirements	This section is for students in on-campus degree programs. A separate section for students in online programs also exists. This section will reopen for enrollment on a space-available basis no later than the Saturday before the class begins.

Remote Delivery vs Online vs In-Person

The process of moving courses to remote delivery is on-going, so what you see today may change. You should receive an email for any changes to your courses, but it is also good to check your schedule from time to time.

Question:

How do remote delivery hours affect my online hours total?

Answer:

Each student is allowed to complete up to 35% of that courses taken at the U of A as online. Remote Delivery courses do not count toward this total.
