

Immigration Law, Hostile Contexts, and the Membership of Latino Immigrants

Cecilia Menjívar
| University of Kansas |

Tuesday, April 4, 2017

—
5:30pm - 6:30pm

—
Giffels Auditorium,
201 Old Main

—
Latin American and Latino Studies
Lecture Series

This talk addresses the various expressions of membership that take place among Latino immigrants today in the context of a “perfect storm” of an expanded enforcement regime, laws that expand the definition of crimes for immigrants, and the hostile context that sustains negative images of Latino immigrants today.

Organized and sponsored by Latin American and Latino Studies with generous support from the Department of Sociology and Criminal Justice