Liberal Arts at Work: or, How to Get a Job with an English Degree

Teacher: L. Lopez Szwydky-Davis

Course Description
What are the professional options for liberal arts and humanities majors outside of the conventional paths of teaching and publishing? This workshop will focus on preparing students to develop professional profiles and effective job application materials for a range of careers, including graduate school (for those interested). Readings will include book-length career guides and shorter web articles and blogs. We will cover strategies to make the most of academic time-to-degree in order to diversify career options. This course is for undergraduates, MA students, and MFA students. The course will focus on job applications for careers outside of traditional teaching jobs as well as (optional) graduate school applications. (This course does not cover the academic job market for MFA or PhD students.) All arts and humanities majors are welcome—the same advice applies for English, History, Philosophy, Theater, Communications, Art, and other liberal arts majors.

Required Texts

Assignments/Requirements
Drafting and revising several job application documents including multiple cover letters and résumés with (3) different professional focus areas; active peer review feedback; 2 presentations; developing a professional web/social media presence; 3 reflective blog posts.

ENGL 5243/5973: Article Writing Workshop

Teacher: J. Hsu

Description: This course provides hands-on, practical guidance for converting a seminar paper into a publishable manuscript. We will focus on the genre and form of the journal article, detail the submission process, and dedicate most of our time to writing, reading, and revising one another’s works in progress. This crash course is intended to allow students a period of intense engagement with a developing project.
Essays, exams, and other Major requirements:
Most course reading will involve one another’s works in progress. The final assignment will be a draft of a journal article. Active, daily participation will also be critical for student success.

MA Advisory Codes: 7, T (with Dr. Hsu's permission)
