ENGL 5023-001 Writing Workshop: Fiction

Teacher: Padma Viswanathan

Description: Graduate Fiction Writing Workshop

Requirements: Students will submit two pieces of fiction writing and an optional revision, for discussion. They will also respond thoughtfully to the work of their peers, and to a weekly reading assignment.

Prerequisite: MFA Creative Writing Students Only

ENGL 5033-001 Writing Workshop: Poetry

Instructor: D. McCombs

Textbooks Required:
TBD

Description: The workshop is a training-ground for serious poets, in which their work will be discussed critically. There will also be brief weekly reading assignments.
Essays, exams, and other major requirements for graduate students at the 5000 level:
Students will be expected to submit their own poems, sometimes in response to specific assignments, for workshop discussions. Full participation, both as a writer and critic, is expected of each member of the workshop.

ENGL 5043-001 Translation Workshop

Instructor: J. DuVal

Textbooks Required:
the texts will be the translation worksheet, consisting of student translations of fiction and/or poems with the corresponding originals along with literal translations of the poetry. From time to time one of us will bring very short samples of published translations for consideration.

Description: The purpose of this course is for literary translators to hone their skills.
Requirements: Students must submit their translations regularly by e-mail to the rest of us in the class. They must also study the translations by other students before class and come to class prepared to discuss them. Class attendance and participation are obligatory

Essays, exams, and other major requirements for graduate students at the 5000 level: TBD

ENGL 5713-003 Old Irish

Instructor: J. Smith

Textbooks Required:
- Old Irish Workbook, E.G. Quin
- Old Irish Paradigms, J. Strachan [available online]
- Sengoidelec: Old Irish for Beginners, David Stifter

Description: In this course students will learn introductory Old Irish, the vernacular language spoken in Ireland from c. 600 to c. 900. At the end of this course, students will have developed low-intermediary reading knowledge of Old Irish. An Old Irish reading will continue in the Spring Semester to build off this course.

Essays, exams, and other major requirements for graduate students at the 5000 level:
Quizzes, weekly translations, final project/exam

MA advisory code: A, 5

ENGL 5203-001 Introduction to Graduate Studies

Instructor: S. Dempsey

Textbooks Required:
- Semenza, Gregory, Graduate Study for the Twenty-First Century: How to Build an Academic Career in the Humanities
- Hayot, Eric. The Elements of Academic Style: Writing for the Humanities

Additional readings will be placed on Blackboard.
Description: This seminar will offer a wide-ranging introduction to graduate studies. We will explore how life in the academy works at all levels (classroom, department, university, the field of literary studies more generally) and how best to prepare yourself for a place in it (issues of professionalization, how to research and write academic papers, preparing for conferences, how to think about pedagogy, the job market, alternative career options after graduate school, etc.). Throughout the semester we will also strive toward building a foundation for what you should know in order to be a successful scholar within literary studies. Accordingly, each week in addition to readings and class time devoted to issues of professionalization we will turn our attention to the history of literary criticism and theory and survey a wide range of approaches to the study of literature.

Essays, exams, and other major requirements for graduate students at the 5000 level:
Enthusiastic participation, one bibliography assignment, two oral presentations, one analysis paper, one “conference paper,” several short response papers.

ENGL 5233-001 Craft of Translation I: Graphic Novels in Translation
ENGL 5243-006 Special Topics: Graphic Novels in Translation

Instructor: G. Brock

Textbooks Required:
Blutch, Peplum. ISBN 978-1590179833
Fayolle, Marion. The Tenderness of Stones. ISBN 978-1681372983
(and other books to be named later)

Description: This course will offer an introduction to the world of the international graphic novel. Our texts, spanning roughly the last half century, will consist of comics translated from Japanese, Korean, Farsi, French, Italian, and Spanish. We’ll grapple with the term “graphic novel”—which can refer not just to works of fiction but also to memoir, biography, journalism, and historiography—and with terms such as bandes dessinées, fumetti, manga, and gekiga, which emerge from different languages and traditions. Over the course of the semester, several of the field’s leading translators will Skype in to the class to discuss their books and the particularities of translating graphic literature.
Essays, exams, and other major requirements for graduate students at the 5000 level: short weekly quizzes, oral presentation, final written project (creative or critical option).

ENGL 5243-002 Special Topics: Arkansas International Magazine Production

Instructor: G. Brock

Textbooks Required:
TBD

Description: In this course we will found a literary magazine and produce the first issue of it. Students will help define the mission of the magazine, solicit work from writers they admire, read unsolicited submissions, accept and reject work, and edit and proof the final contents.

Description: This course explores speculative fiction, which we’ll interpret broadly to mean anything from near-future science fiction and epic fantasy to magical realism and surrealism. We’ll discuss speculative craft techniques and concepts such as worldbuilding, fairy tale structure, and “the weird” to better understand how different speculative fiction works—and how we can deploy and subvert these techniques in our own writing. Part critical analysis and part creative writing, we’ll examine recent and diverse works for craft and technique. Then, we’ll experiment with our own writing exercises and group workshops.

ENGL 6593-001 Seminar in Gender, Sexuality, and Literature: Fundamentals of Ethnic Studies, Gender, and Queer Theory

Instructor: Y. Padilla

Textbooks Required:
- Fanon, Franz, The Wretched of the Earth ISBN 978-0802141323

Description: This course is designed to provide students with a basic introduction or primer to some of the key theories and theoretical thinkers in the fields of ethnic, gender, and queer studies. Our engagement with these theories and critical thinkers will consist of not only grappling with the key arguments and concepts posited by the theorists we read but also interrogating the specific subject positions from which they speak. The latter is just as relevant to understanding both the possibilities and limitations of the theoretical paradigms we will be exploring. Weekly readings may consist of entire books or chapter selections, articles taken from critical readers or anthologies, and related secondary articles. Although the emphasis of the class is to engage with “fundamental” works of ethnic, gender, and queer studies scholarship, students will also be asked to read a selection of newer works in each field that draw attention to other developing areas of inquiry.

Essays, exams, and other major requirements for graduate students at the 5000 level: 3 Short Response Papers (5-7 pages each), one oral presentation/class led discussion.

Obviously, I will shorten this list, which is very much in flux.

Description:

“...on or about December, 1910, human character changed.”

— Virginia Woolf

We like to think of ourselves as postmodern, but in many ways we are still living inside the ideas and forms created by the brazen insurrection which was transatlantic Modernism. Modernists upended conventions across literature, music, art, and architecture, producing, as Michael Levenson writes, “forbidding work [that] belonged to complicated, unforgiving times. Living without the gods of progress or reason—and without God—they tried this, tried that, reached further, failed, and then failed better (Beckett’s phrase).” In this class we will restrict our focus to the Modernist novel, watching these writers break away from their Romantic and Victorian precursors, challenging our expectations with respect to plot, character, and the uses of language itself. With breathtaking idealism, Modernists hoped that art could become the cohesive force that religion had once been and that politics had failed to become. The novel is a small part of this story, but it sheds some light on the meaning of our Modernist inheritance for our own complicated and unforgiving times.

ENGL 5973-001 Advanced Studies in Rhetoric and Composition: Writing Center Peer Tutor Pedagogy

Instructor: K.L. Madison

Textbooks Required:

Suggested:

Description: Writing Center peer tutor pedagogy is a unique form of instructional expertise that is informed by both critical theory and learner-based strategies. Students learn to critically evaluate and effectively articulate writer concerns and to collaborate with writers and other tutors. The course recognizes the complexity of learning effective writing skills in the classroom and the importance of trained tutors in building literacy competency and academic flexibility in students attending Arkansas public schools and in the matriculation of underrepresented Arkansas populations at the University of Arkansas. In this course, students will explore the theory and practice of peer consulting through class activities, readings, discussions, and observing and participating in consultations. Students will use the opportunities offered to tailor their class work to best fit their academic goals and interests, although a heavy focus will be on tutoring writing across the curriculum and literacy issues.

Essays, exams, and other major requirements for graduate students: Pedagogy Portfolio, Literacy Memoir, Civic Literacy Research Project, Article Review, Article for an appropriate on-line or print journal, On-Location WC Space Analysis; Correspondence with WCA or WPA professionals, Literacy Research Paper, Literature Review Colloquium, Conference paper (7-8 pages.)
